TRAGIC DEATH OF MR. R. G. SHEWAN

ON ANNIVERSARY OF ARRIVAL

53 YEARS IN THE COLONY

It is with the deepest regret that we have to chronicle the death of Mr. Robert Gordon Shewan, head of the well-known firm of Shewan, Tones and Co., which occurred under tragic circumstances yesterday morning, when he fell from the window of No. 2, Conduit Road, where he was staying, receiving injuries to which he quickly succumbed.

Immediately the mishap became known, Mr. Shewan was rushed to the Government Civil Hospital, but he had already passed away before arrival there. He was 75 years of age.

The funeral takes place this evening, passing the Monument at 5.30 p.m. By request, there will be no flowers.

TWO ULTIMATUMS ISSUED BY GOVERNMENT

VIVID SPECIAL "WAR" DESPATCHES

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1881. Received, February 15, 8.30 a.m.)

VIENNA, FEB. 15.

THE SOCIALIST REVOLT HAS BEEN SMASHED AFTER THREE DAYS OF DESPERATE FIGHTING ACCCOMPANIED BY A TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE, THE FULL EXTENT OF WHICH CANNOT YET BE ESTIMATED.

Many of the most modern buildings in Vienna have been virtually destroyed by shell-fire, having been employed by the Socialists as "fortresses" against the Government forces, which now have the situation under control, although fighting increased in the late afternoon yesterday.

The Government announces that all Socialists who surrender before noon to-day will be pardoned, except the ringleaders. No pardons will be granted to those who resist after noon to-day.

It is estimated that the casualties in Vienna alone, include:

ARMY AND POLICE.

Killed	131
Missing	200
Seriously Wounded	200

SOCIALISTS.

Killed	at least 1,000
Wounded	2,000

Between twenty and twenty-five women were slain during the fighting.

The first Socialist, Franz Munichreiter, to be executed was hanged at five o'clock yesterday afternoon.—United Press.

A vivid story of the sensational events of the last two days, partly provided by Reuter, but mainly by special despatches to the "Telegraph" will be found in chronological sequence below.

Ruthless Methods By Government

Vienna, Feb. 13, 12.20 p.m.

The Socialist insurgents are trapped in huge blocks of ultra-modern flats, but they are fighting desperately with their backs to the wall, armed with bombs, machine-guns and rifles, defending, with the utmost valour, Socialism's fifteen years of hegemony in Vienna.

In the meantime, they are losing lives steadily. The Governmental forces are ruthlessly employing all the devices of destructive warfare.

ARTILLERY FIRE.

Steadily advancing artillery fire is proceeding. In the Ottakring quarter, while in the Hellingstadt quarter, a giant block of flats called the Karlmarxhof (Karl Marx House) is offering the stoutest resistance to the troops, who have tried in vain to rush the entrances, and are now machine-gunning the windows.

The Heimwehr have occupied the tramcar electricity works and are endeavouring to start the dynamo and resume the service.

Although the situation is extremely tense, the curfew order has been modified already and theatres will be allowed to open to-night.

All Vienna had to walk to work to-day, but many workshops were closed.

The Nazis have been strictly enjoined by their leaders to abstain from participation.

The Government is winning in the engagement at Linz and only a few points are held by the Socialists at Graz, where over fifty were killed and hundreds wounded in the fighting. Graz is now believed to be quiet apart from scuffles.—Reuter.

WHAT NEXT IN AUSTRIA?

ATTEMPT TO SMASH THE NAZIS PREDICTED

INTERVENTION BY POWERS?

(Our Own Correspondent.)

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1881. Received, February 15, 8.10 a.m.)

London, Feb. 15.

What next for Austria is the general question?

With the smashing of "Red Vienna," Dr. Dollfuss's efforts to create a balance between the anti-Catholic Socialists and the Catholic peasants, who are the backbone of the Heimwehr, has been finally achieved.

It appears inevitable that he must submit to the demands of Prince von Starhemberg and Major Fey.

It is reported that the Nazis have offered to cooperate with Dollfuss on condition that they are given the portfolios of the Interior and Public Safety.

NAZIS NEXT?

It is probable that they hope thereby to force a general election and secure a sweeping victory.

The crushing of the Socialists, however, is much more likely to be the prelude to a Fascist onslaught on the Nazis, to which recent events have clearly been showing the trend.

Many of the Austrian Fascist leaders belong to the old aristocracy of the Empire, imbued with the traditional Hapsburg contempt for Prussian methods.

Furthermore, the defeated Socialists are likely to swing towards the Nazis, who at least profess some Socialist ideas.

The basis of all the trouble is economic. Austria's adverse trade balance and distress among the peasants.

INTERVENTION?

Great hopes, therefore, are centred upon the recent visit to Budapest of Dr. Dollfuss. An economic reunion of Austria and

MR. SAITO AT THE WHITE HOUSE

ASSURANCES OF GOOD WILL

Washington, Feb. 13.

A further declaration of Japan's pacific policy was made today by Mr. Saito, the new Ambassador to America, when, in presenting his credentials to President Roosevelt, he said he was sure that whatever question arose in the future, it could and would be amicably composed.

President Roosevelt emphasised that he was still devoted to the principle of maintaining peace in the Pacific region and elsewhere.

"It is our constant desire," he said, "that by the co-operation of all countries, the Pacific region may continue to enjoy peace, and attain abounding prosperity."

Mr. Saito mentioned the question of Manchuria, saying the peace of Eastern Asia had been, and ever would be, the genuine aim and abiding aspiration of the Japanese nation.

With reference to trade, the new Ambassador expressed the opinion that the United States and Japan could profitably unite their efforts in a common struggle against the depression.—Reuter.

ELDERLY COUPLE DIE TOGETHER

SHANGHAI AFFAIR SEQUEL

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1881. Received, February 15, 8.05 p.m.)

New York, Feb. 14.

A poignant tragedy was revealed when the police entered the home of Mr. Emil Philippson and his wife Marie in New York to-day and found the elderly couple dead.

They were the parents of Mrs. William Grooch, who, with her two children, crashed to death from the roof of an apartment house in Shanghai on January 19 and they were heart-broken by the shocking death of their daughter and grandchildren.

They had not been seen for two days and the police entered their home in response to requests by worried neighbours.

IN EACH OTHER'S ARMS

Mr. and Mrs. Philippson, both of them 72 years of age, were found dead clasped in each other's arms.

The police quickly came to the conclusion that they were victims of a suicide pact and the doctor called in declared that they had been dead for two days.

Neighbours attributed the double suicide to the grief of the couple at the deaths of their daughter and grandchildren, and this was confirmed by a note which the Philippsons left behind them, stating:

"We cannot stand the pain any longer."—United Press.

Be Blind to Some Faults

By Olive Roberts Barton

Have you a blind spot? No? Then by all means get a "mote" somewhere. Are you a little deaf? Hear every little squeak and rattle, do you? That's too bad. A little cotton helps a lot. And I suppose your senses of touch, taste and smell are all in grand working order, too. That's a terrible handicap.

Because where there are stirring, red-blooded, adventuresome children about, it never pays to have a hundred and one nerve ends out ready to pick up trouble-wavers—and amplify them.

"Acting" Dumb and Blind

In the course of any day, it is the most unwise thing in the world to make a point of every little thing that happens, and this is why it is comfortable for us parents to be a bit deaf, dumb, blind and stupid. If we insist on being alert and aware of every little gnat in the butter, so to speak, at least we can pretend not to.

How very busy we would be if we let every little snag catch us, even going out of our way to get scratched, as we pass on the turbulent stream of life. There is enough worry and trouble without hunting up a million little things that really don't matter.

Here and there will be a shoe laced up crooked, a drop of jelly on the table cloth, or a towel on the bathroom floor. This is where the blinders come in handy.

Or we'll hear a shrill dispute, forgotten by the orators in two minutes, so why make too much of it?

A chunk of gum under a chair crumbs in a bed, a sticky place on the furniture. A snail drying in a coat pocket, or a vicious odour from the garage. Well, to-morrow is another day.

Nagging vs. Training

Here's what I'm trying to get at, seriously. We try the best we can, each of us, to train our children. We must make issues of many things, but I believe we overdo it. This is just the difference between nagging and real training. Once training over-balances to the nagging side, it's about over. Our influence is not only largely lost and the children turn surreptitious and sometimes untruthful, but we are unhappy and so are they.

Of course we see everything, or nearly everything. Who could help it? But we don't need to let them know we see it—not every time, at least.

There is just room in one day for so many reminders, corrections and arguments. No, not arguments. Debate is better. A child usually has a right to be heard, but neither side has a right to get emotional and all worked up to a battle.

But this beside the point. Each day has a saturation point

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

Avoid Blending Rouge Low on Cheek

By Alicia Hart

Every girl realizes that rouge does much to improve her appearance. The era of the pale, wan beauty vanished long ago and a girl's aim, these days, is to look healthy and full of vitality.

Few of us have much natural colour. It is impossible for busy women of this day and age to get enough exercise actually to make our cheeks red. Consequently, we or such matters. Beyond that it's wise to let some things slide.

Children are children and life is life. Why keep the whole house and ourselves constantly irritated? If we're deliberately blind to some things that could stand improvement, perhaps we can occupy that time by noticing more good things. Our nerves will last longer and every one will smile more and sleep better.

Use a foundation lotion before you put on cream rouge and powder carefully when you have finished blending it.

depend on the rouge pot to do the trick.

Cream rouges are considered best both for evening and for daytime. They stay on much longer and do not have a drying effect on the skin.

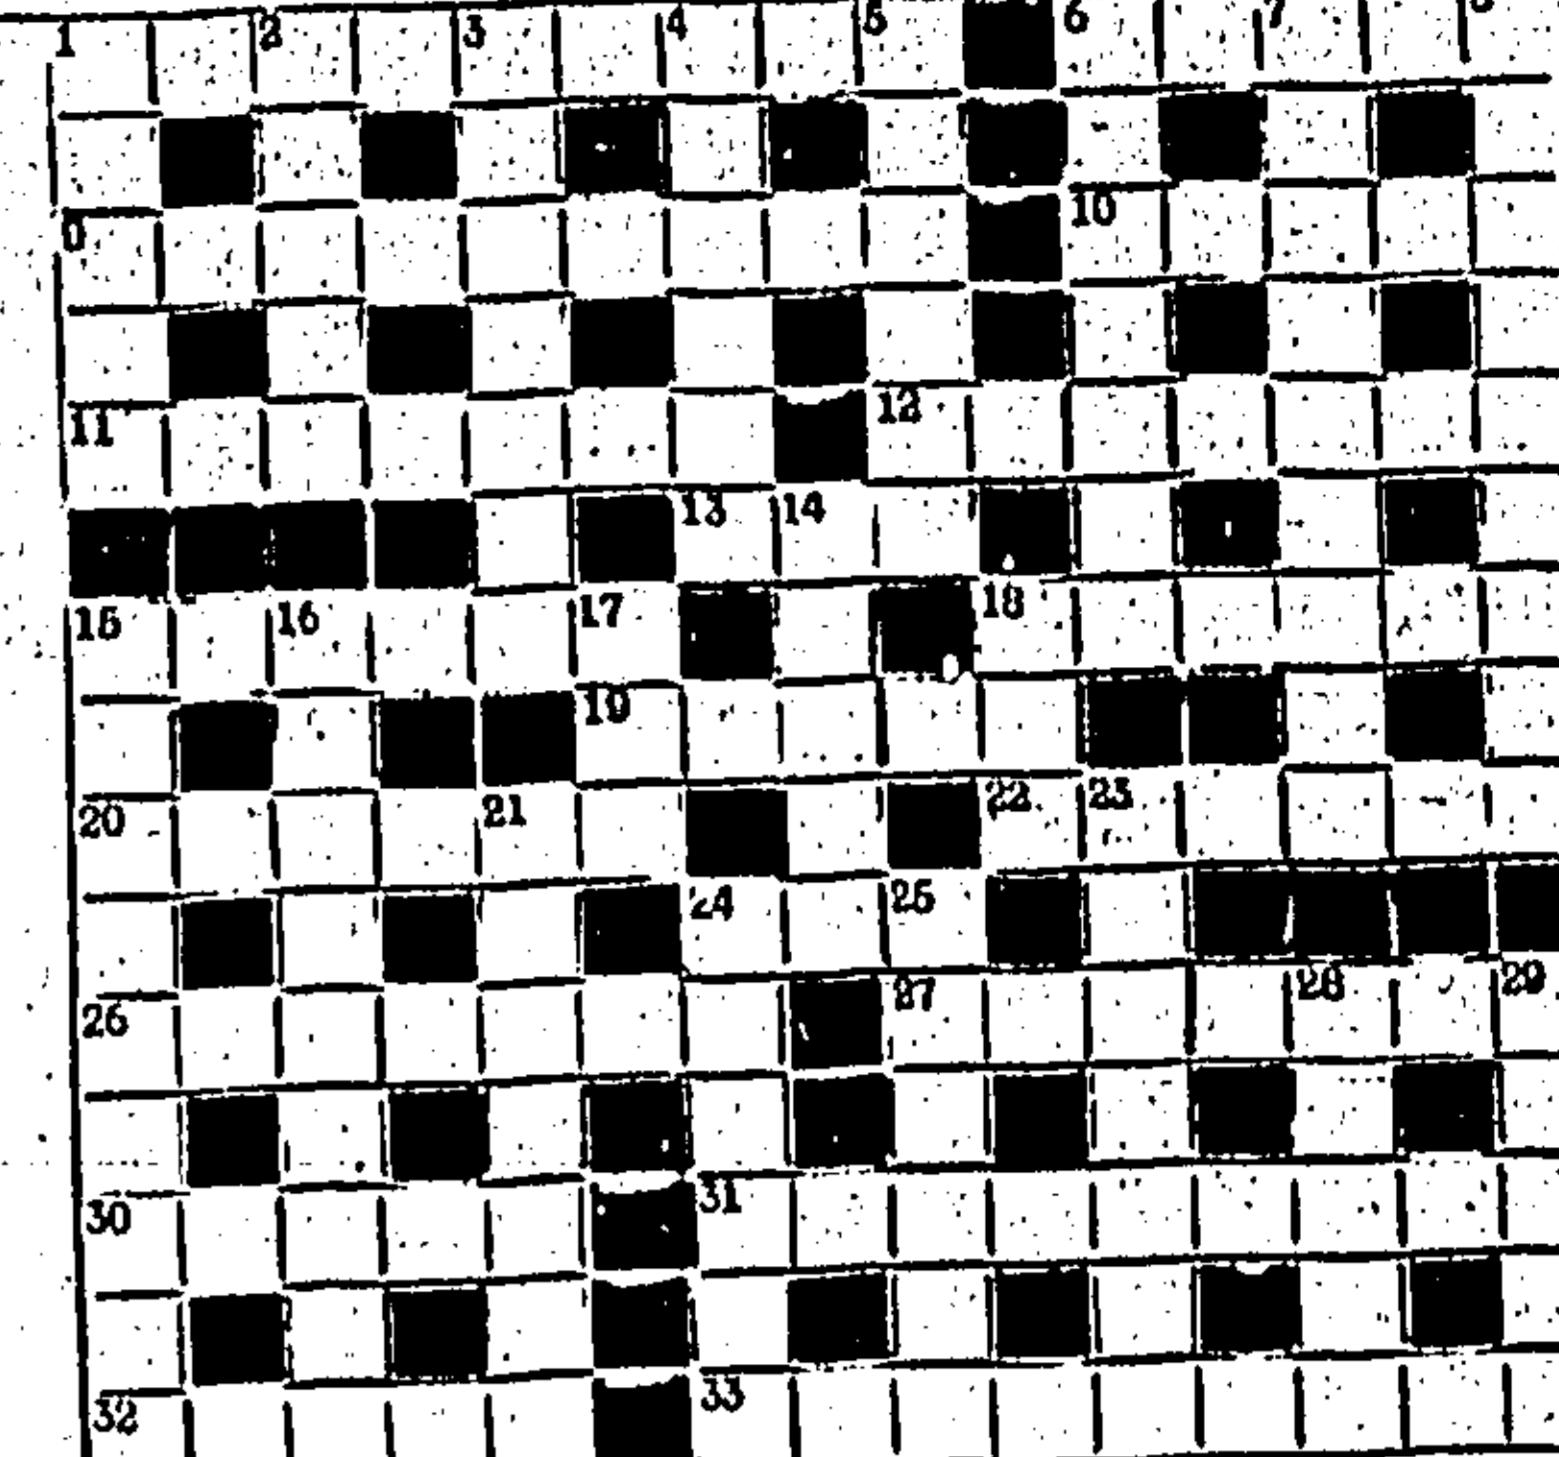

Try and select a rouge which is about the tone your complexion would be if you had a natural high colour.

And then put it on in exactly the place which nature selects when she decides to favour you with some colouring in your cheeks. Don't blend it down too low on your cheeks. You don't want your face to have the "dragged down" appearance.

Apply cream rouge in three little dots. Put one on the point of the cheekbone, another in toward the nose and the third one outward toward your ear. Rub and blend until you have a smooth, even, high colour which looks perfectly natural.

Use a foundation lotion before you put on cream rouge and powder carefully when you have finished blending it.

A Singular Mistake!

Forgotten Sweetheart / by MARY RAYMOND

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, is deeply attracted to JOAN WARING, a pretty Memphis girl. Bob is in Memphis in connection with his father's new textile plant. Joan is the daughter of a former member of an aristocratic family, killed himself years ago. Joan's mother longs for her daughter to have the social position denied her. PAT, Joan's friend, is in love with JENNY FORESTER, son of her employer. Joan considers Jerry a spoilt playboy and is troubled over Pat.

HALLIEA COURTNEY, a popular society girl, is in love with JOHN BOB. John is scheming to win him. Bob is compelled to break a tentative date with Joan when he learns Barbara has included him in a dinner party. Pat reads about the party in a newspaper and goes to the dinner. John is one of the men who owns the textile plant. She tells Joan Bob is only amusing himself with her.

Joan is unhappy until Bob calls and cautions about the date. Bob has just put down the telephone when a call comes from Barbara who asks him to take her to lunch. She says she has "something exciting" to tell him.

CHAPTER IX

Barbara and Bob sat at a small table near the front of the hotel dining room because Barbara wanted to see as well as hear the orchestra. Once she sent word to the leader, asking him to play "Look Who's Hero." She smiled at Bob when the leader complied with her request. "It's for you," she said. "I'm feeling very important, luring you away from important duties."

Bob smiled back. Barbara was a child—a sweet child.

"It's nice here. Everybody comes." Barbara chatted on brightly. "The pretty girl at the table on your left will be a debutante next season. Two other girls who will probably make their debuts in the fall are at the table in front of us. Of course," she went on, "I just dare you to look at anybody but me!"

Bob asked, veering away from a dangerous topic, "What's the exciting news you promised me?" "I'm carrying you away to a house party down in Mississippi. Carol Sheridan, the girl you liked on the party last night, is giving it. The Sheridans have the loveliest old home! It's been in their family for generations. And a swell crowd is going."

"When did you say?" "We're driving down Friday morning and coming back Sunday afternoon."

"I'm sorry, Barbara. I couldn't possibly make it." Three days without seeing Joan!

Barbara's eyes met his. Her voice had a little edge as she said, "Now, Bob, don't tell me the work couldn't go on without you. You've a date with someone, haven't you?"

He hadn't but he would have after seeing Joan that night. On Sunday Joan wouldn't be busy and he was hoping to have the whole day with her. There was something he wanted to tell her—that she was the sweetest, dearest, most wonderful girl in the world.

Barbara, watching his face, said abruptly, "Why not be honest, Bob. It's a date with a girl!"

"Yes."

There was a moment of silence, while Barbara studied her plate thoughtfully. Outwardly she was calm but in her heart she felt a blind, unreasoning fury. Jealousy of this girl—whoever she was—who had made such headway while she, Barbara, had been given only casual, impersonal friendship.

Then the hot, defiant challenge flung to her unknown adversary. "She can't have him!" Barbara told herself.

Raising her eyes to meet Bob's, she said slowly, striving for the wistful effect that always succeeded so well with men, "I'm taking this rather hard. You see I am so awfully disappointed. I was sure you would come, Bob, and all my plans were built around your going. Who is she?"

"Joan Waring." He said the name gently. If Barbara had had any doubts before they were swept away now.

"He's terribly hard hit," she decided bitterly. Aloud she said, "Joan Waring? I don't believe I know her."

"Well, you've missed something."

"Evidently."

Then suddenly she remembered: Waring—Waring? It couldn't be the same girl, yet the name, "Joan," struck a chord of memory.

"There was a Waring girl at school one year," Barbara said. "The year I went away. Molly Davis wrote me about the wonderful voice she had."

"Joan has a wonderful voice. And Molly Davis is a friend of hers."

"It must be the same girl. But that's strange."

"That's strange about it?"

"That you should know her. I wouldn't have thought you would know the Warings. It seems queer."

"That's what I thought. Queer and wonderful."

There was another silence. Barbara was thinking, planning. It was lucky that this other girl was not a member of her crowd, her world. It would be only a matter of time and showing Bob, cleverly and subtly, that Joan Waring was impossible for him. Simply impossible.

Barbara's eyes met Bob's. She thought they were not quite so friendly now. As though he sensed intuitively, her antagonism to Joan. She must be more guarded. The situation was going to require tact. Plenty of tact.

Barbara telephoned to Carol when she reached home. "Bob can't come, Carol," she said. "He has date with a girl Sunday and doesn't feel he should break it."

"That's a shame! But you'll come anyway, of course. Invite someone else."

"I want him." Barbara added sweetly, "If this girl were only some one else I'd ask you to squeeze her in some place if you could."

"Why, of course. There's worlds of room. It was stupid of me not to think of that."

"Oh, but I couldn't," Barbara answered. "Not this girl. It's Joan Waring."

"Never heard of her."

"No, I don't suppose you have. She was the girl—a complete outsider—that Molly Davis was so crazy about several years ago and pushed for everything—even her own sorority."

"Well, she must be all right then."

"But she isn't! There was a big scandal—her father committed suicide years ago. It was spread all over the papers. He embezzled a lot of money and a woman was mixed up in it, too!"

"Oh, I do seem to remember. It was the classic scandal of my childhood. Are you sure it's the same family?"

"I'm positive."

"Too bad."

"Of course," Barbara said, "I wouldn't care about that old story myself and from what Bob says she must be lovely. Only I couldn't think of asking you to have her, Carol. What would your mother think?"

Carol laughed. "She isn't as broadminded as I am—but she doesn't need to know the whole story. Go ahead and ask her! I'd hate terribly to see you turn your handsome millionaire over to her."

Barbara flushed angrily. She had no such intention. She said sweetly, "I really think it's darling of you, though somehow I'm afraid you shouldn't include her. It's awful hard to mix crowds."

"Well, I'll risk it. If she doesn't mix she'll be submerged when that bunch begins partying."

"I'll sound Bob out." Barbara put down the telephone and sat for a moment—feeling the leaven of triumph stirring. Her eyes shone. Her cheeks were flushed. It was so important to make exactly the right moves. There was Carol, feeling that she, Barbara had been so awfully generous and thoughtful. "Submerged," Carol had said. Well, that was exactly the way a girl should feel, deliberately edging in where she had no right, probably, leading Bob on to believe she belonged to the right crowd.

Bob passed the invitation on to Joan.

"I'll talk it over with Mother," she said, "and let you know tonight."

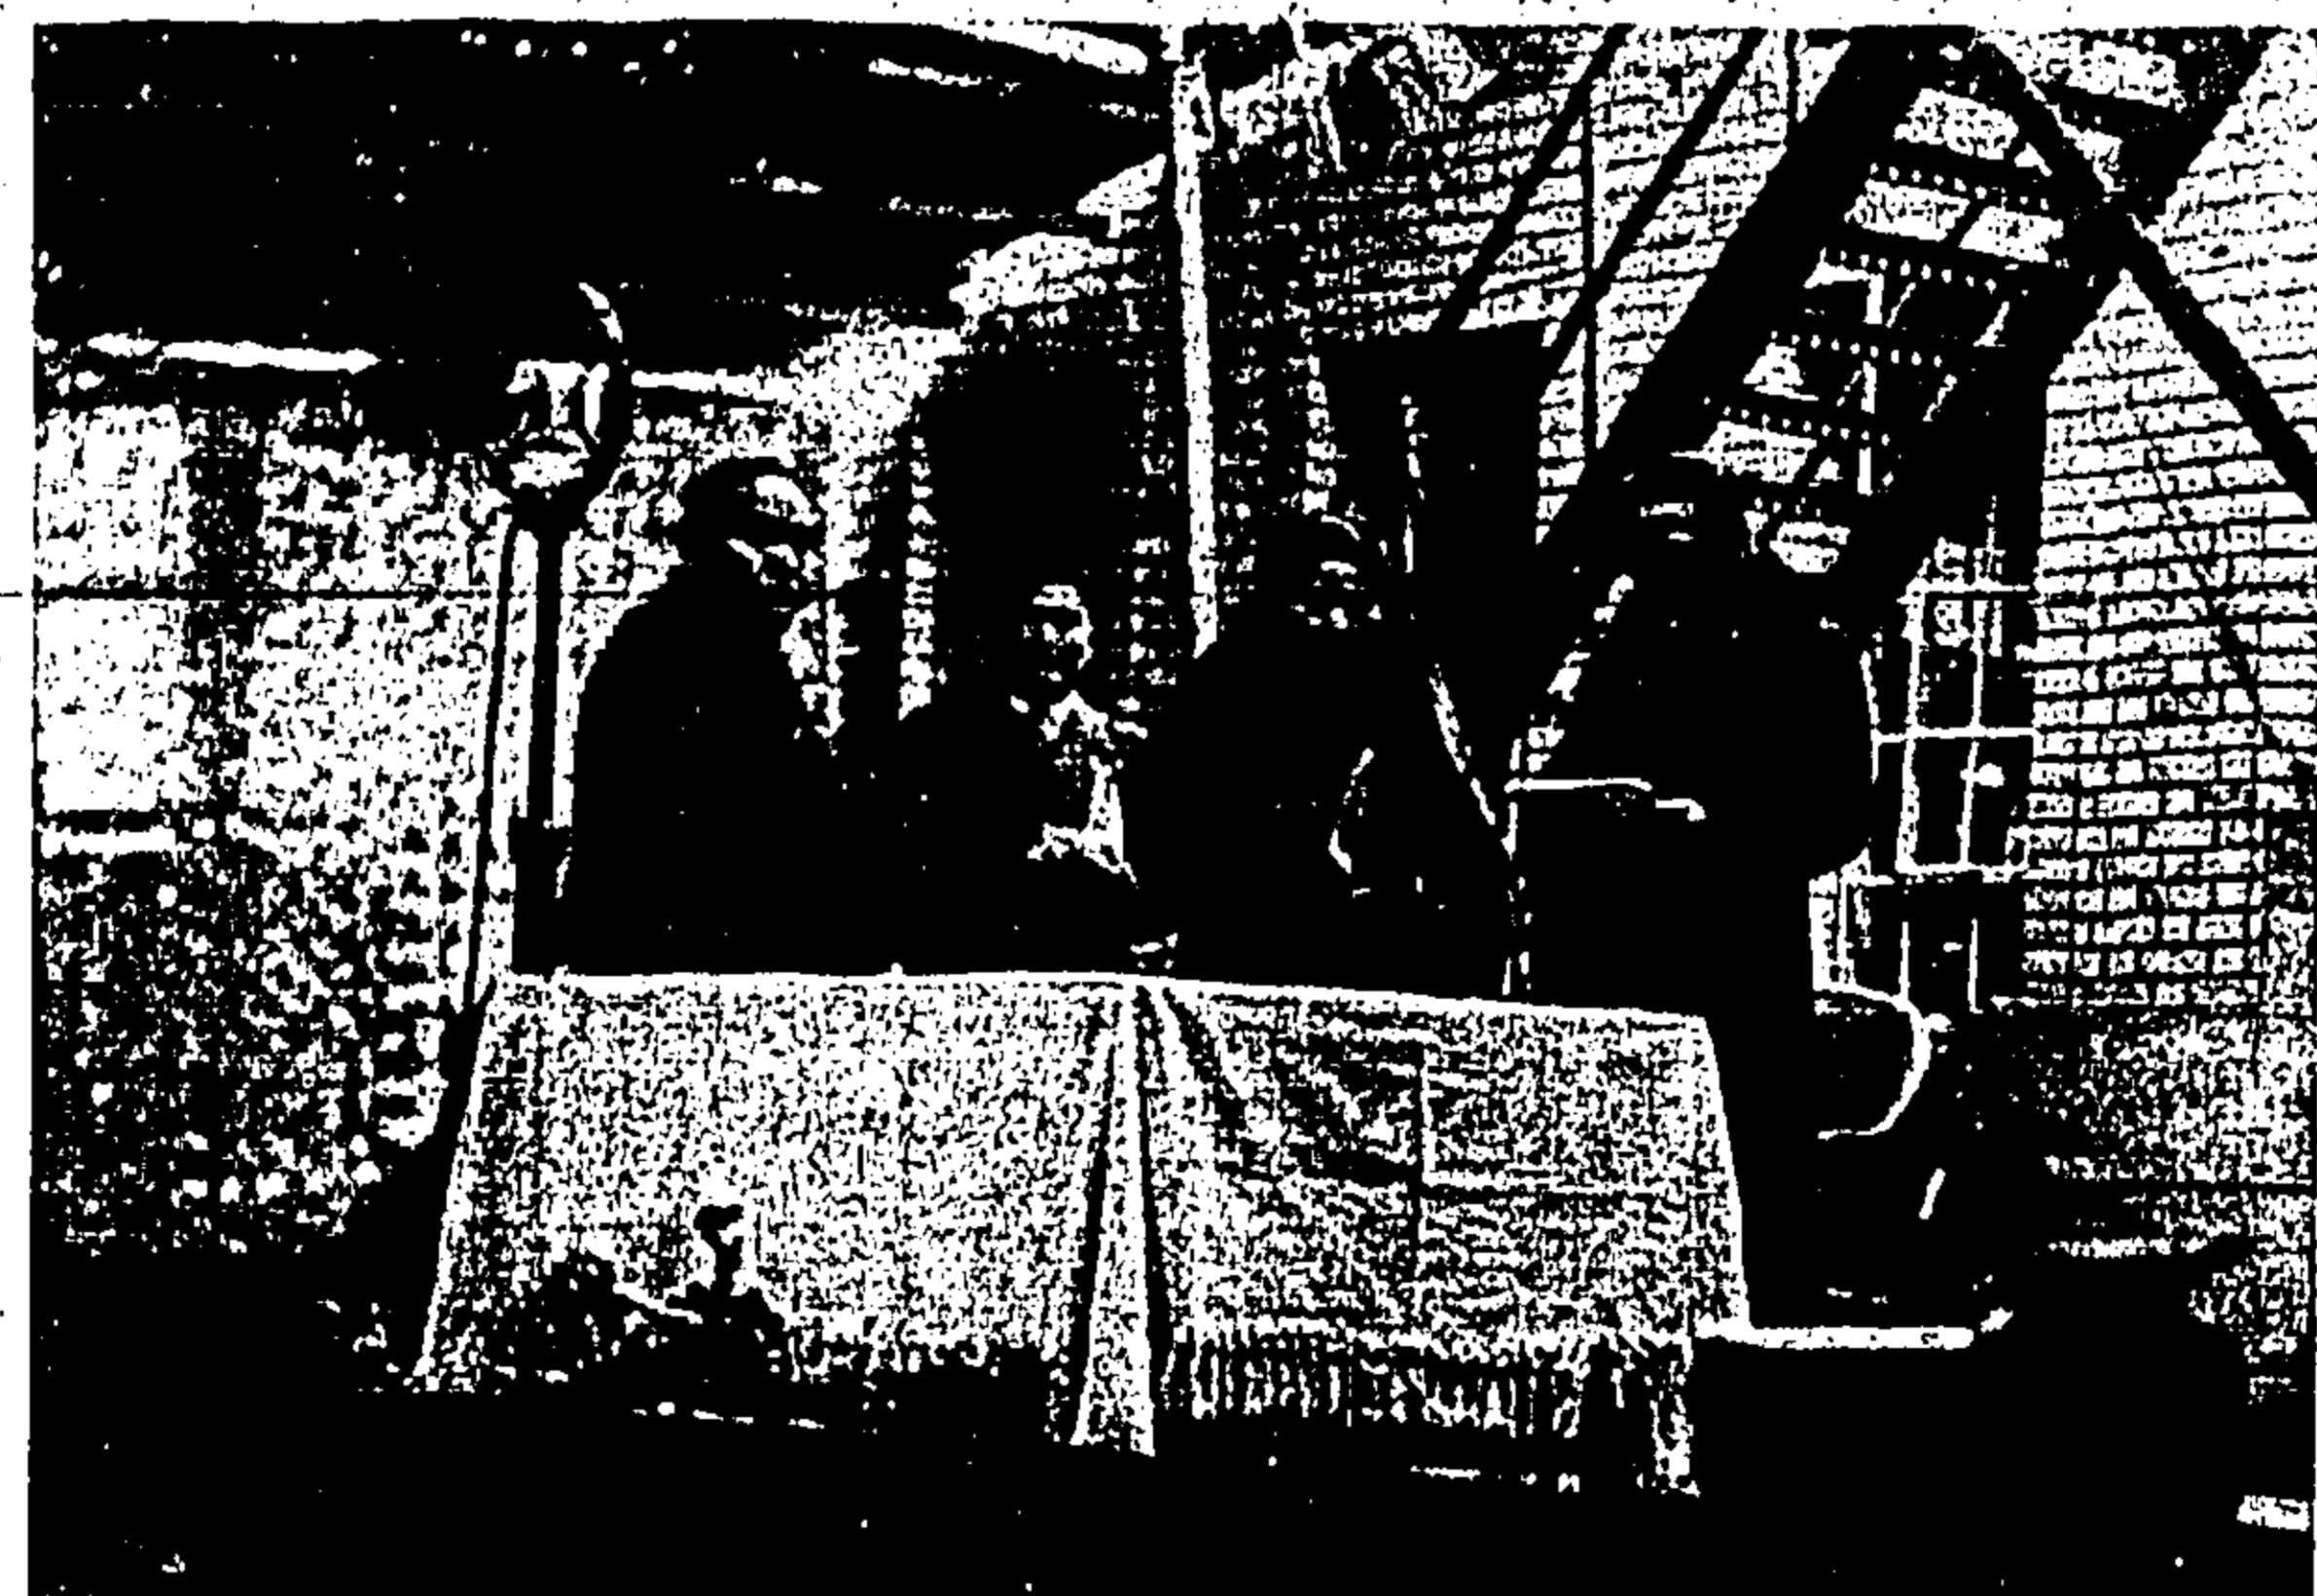

Joan found her mother in the kitchen. Mrs. Waring was sitting near the worn old kitchen table that was always spotlessly clean, a bowl of potatoes in her lap.

"Darling," said Joan, "don't you feel sometimes as though you never wanted to see another po-

CASH FOR GOLD

Have you any useless articles made of gold? If so, does the present unprecedented price of gold interest you?

A few years ago, you must have seen pictures in the newspapers depicting queues of people in London, selling old trinkets for cash!

They were not "hard-up" in the majority of cases, but suddenly realised that gold was possessed of an unusual cash value. Old and useless watches and odds and ends realised cash!

To-day, the price of gold is higher than then, and you too can exchange what to you may be sheer junk, for dollars.

The price paid by me is based upon the true value of gold to-day. In any case, I value what you have to offer free of charge. It is up to you whether you accept the offer.

tato? How many years have you been paring them?"
"I don't mind a bit. I'm so used to it."

"Yes, I know. Just the same you hope Pat and I won't have to cook and scrub and pare potatoes all our lives."

Mrs. Waring smiled guiltily. "Let the potatoes alone, Joan. Go and dress for your young man."

"There's loads of time. Mother, I'm invited on a house party."

"Why, Joan, that's lovely! When are you going, darling?"

"I'm not sure I want to go," Joan said. She began to voice doubts. About the strange home, strange people. They were inviting her because they wanted Bob, of course. She hated the thought of accepting another girl's invitation through Barbara Courtney.

"Young people aren't formal any more," said Mrs. Waring.

"I haven't any clothes."

"Why, dear, your clothes are lovely. And you'll never have any good times if you refuse all the invitations you get."

Mother wanted her to go. Mother didn't know what really lovely things were, the kind of clothes those other girls wore.

The telephone rang and Joan put down the potatoes to answer.

"This is Barbara Courtney," she said. "She has an even, persuasive voice. 'Did Bob Weston call you about the house party?'"

"Yes," Joan said.

"We hope you are coming."

"I'd love to," Joan said.

Alves-Guerra, Lieut. F. da Costa (Macao) and Mr. J. Rouquer (Captain of the Hongkong team).

"Opinions vary, but I think on the whole, the final result was quite a fair decision. A vote of thanks is due to the umpires, Commander Leigh and Major Campbell, who I am sure you will all agree controlled the game in very excellent manner" remarked Mr. Rodger. "He thanked Macao for the very sporting game they had given the Colony."

Supporting Mr. Dand, at the official table were the following: the Portuguese Consul (Mr. Alves-Guerra), Marquis de Ficalho, Lieut. F. da Costa, Mr. L. Rodriguez (Captain of the Macho team), Capt. R. C. H. Bates (Punjabis), Messrs. W. W. Woodward, F. A. Kemp, J. Rodger (Hongkong captain), and P. J. Harlow.

Central British Defeat H.M.S. Cumberland.

In a friendly hockey match played at King's Park on Tuesday, the Central British Association defeated H.M.S. Cumberland by two goals to one, after leading at the interval by a goal to nil. J. J. King and W. H. G. Hirst scored for the winners while Lt.-Cdr. Whetstone was responsible for the Cumberland's point, scored as the result of a penalty in the second half.

Y.M.C.A. Win. The Y.M.C.A. defeated the Incognitos by three goals to nil in a friendly hockey match on the home ground at King's Park on Tuesday. T. J. Price and W. J. Brown (2) scored the goals in the first half. The Y.M.C.A. fielded only ten men.

three games.

THE VITAL EIGHTH. H.D. then came back, and seized a 4-3 lead on his service. In the vital eighth game, he held half a dozen game points, five of them from deuce, but he adopted ultraway tactics, and missed his opportunities. Sirdar eventually obtained the vantage point and lost no time annexing the next to draw level at four-all.

Still H.D. fought back, and the rally, although considerably slower, with both players adopting cautious tactics and waiting for errors, were tensely exciting. In the 15th and 16th games Sirdar applied extra pressure which brought its reward. He first won his own service, and then broke through his cousins to finish off the match.

DOLLAR LINER RESCUES NINE FILIPINOS

Bugalo, Feb. 13. On her way from Hongkong to Manila last night, the Dollar Liner President Jefferson effected the rescue of nine Filipinos from a damaged and rudderless sailing vessel, which was sighted twelve hours after the liner left Hongkong.

The natives, when rescued, were in the last stages of exhaustion. They had been adrift for seven days, and during the whole of that time their sole sustenance had been cocoanuts.

Their boat, a small wooden sloop, was abandoned with its cargo of lumber in Latitude 18° 05' and Longitude 117° 43'. Our Correspondent.

black shirts) to oppose the shibboleths of their country's enemies and a few rough-and-ready witticisms. I have descended into that nocturnal arena myself and having elicited a first laugh, have always had an attentive hearing.

You must learn, of course, how to deal with irritating interruptions without losing your temper or getting rattled. I have found, and you will find, that genial ridicule, after the manner of Sydney Smith, is a deadly weapon against doctrinaires.

If many more of the Conservative members had been trained in this rough school of oratory, the debates in the House of Commons would be less dull and depressing and more widely read. There are many capable speakers of various types there. Mr. Neville Chamberlain is a master of pell-mell composition, and so is Mr. Stanley Baldwin, whose thought is sometimes touched with emotion. Sir John Simon sheds the siccum lumen or dry light of his legal intelligence on any topic he chooses to discuss with a cold precision which makes me feel like sitting in a draught. The "rumbustious" street-corner man is best exemplified in the loud challenges of the Clyde side demagogues. Mr. Hor-Bellish is one of the very few members who can bring into play the epigram and other edged weapons of rhetoric (the Oxford Union brand in his case). But to my mind the only orator left in the House, now that the Prime Minister is a snowed-over volcano and Mr.

Lloyd George no longer supplies his own Limehouse light, is Mr.

Winston Churchill. And I never listen to a debate without impotuously ejaculating: "Oh for

MATCH AT CANTON.

An International Fixture At Tungshan On Sunday.

SCOTLAND AND ENGLAND.

An enjoyable golf tournament was staged on Sunday last between England and Scotland at Tungshan, Canton.

Six singles matches were played in the morning, leaving England in the lead by four games to two. The Scots came back in the doubles, however, with two wins to one, thus leaving the contest a draw.

In the singles, Lay displayed his Gaelic spirit by giving nothing away except two stymies on the second and third greens, and overcame Batchelor by one up, "Cub" Smith covered a lot of ground, in the morning, his caddie displaying merit with his abacus in totting up the strokes.

The competitive spirit was continued during the tiffin recess, with varying results. Many ladies graced the proceedings, from the first tee.

All records went by the board when two singles contestants halved the long third tee-hole (120 yards).

"Duck Soup," the Marx Brothers' latest Paramount picture, is now showing at the King's Theatre. Like the Four Marx Brothers, add a director, a half-dozen writers and a lightning-fast secretary, and you have the start of a hilarious comedy. All they need is an idea, and they go on from there. "How about an ending?" queries a writer. "It just can't go on indefinitely." "Well stop it," says Groucho, "whenever we come to a place that looks good. You writers figure out some good, snappy dialogue that we can change without breaking your hearts. We'll get together and figure out some gags. Hire a lot of extras, get some swell uniforms and medals, and Leo McCarey can start shooting tomorrow." And that is how a Marx Brothers picture is born.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII"

History, frequently scandalmongering, has busied itself to such an extent with the unfortunate amours in the life of Henry VIII that the real, intriguing and vital side of his character, as an intensely human, fun-loving, wash-buckling King of the Realm, has been almost entirely overlooked. It is this element of sheer humanness that provides the keynote for the outstanding characterization of blust King F. Hal which is presented by Charles Laughton in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," the United Artists' release coming to the King's Theatre on Sunday next. Indisputable proof supports the statement that this famous Tudor established on a firm foundation England's supremacy on the sea, a fact which has been cleverly worked into the story early in its process of unfoldment. "As far as his educational background is concerned," says Laughton, "my close study of everything available regarding the personality of this important figure revealed some interesting details.

wanted to make him a true to life presentation, a man with livable and lovable qualities, for such he must have been to have achieved such tremendous popularity as he enjoyed. Not only was he a fine linguist and an accomplished musician, he composed two complete masses, one of which is frequently performed, even to-day, in addition to numerous shorter secular compositions, but he was most liberal in his patronage of the arts and learned men. It is this lighter, finer side which I have endeavoured to make the basis for my performance. True, his character as a sensualist capable of severe cruelty is inextricably interwoven with these other elements, but it has been my effort to show him as the man he was rather than as the despot he has been painted". The characters of five of Henry's six wives are portrayed in "The Private Life of Henry VIII", Marly Oberon playing Anne Boleyn, Wendy Barrie playing Jane Seymour, Elsa Lanchester, (Laughton's wife) playing Ann of Cleves, Binnie Barnes portraying Katherine Howard and Everley Gregg playing Katherine Parr.

"Meet the Baron."

"Discovered! A new pair of screen lovers!" They are Jack Pearl, redoubtable "Baron Munchausen" of the radio, and Zasu Pitts, wistful comedienne, who are teamed as the romantic interests in "Meet the Baron," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's uproarious comedy with the most notable cast of laughmakers in years, now showing at the Queen's Theatre. Zasu plays the head chambermaid in a girls' college where Pearl as "The Baron" shows up to lecture. It's a case of love at first sight, but Zasu is modest and "The Baron" is a nice little fellow who gets embarrassed when he wants to tell about his great love. But when they get locked into an icebox together they finally "get into a clinch"—to keep warm and thus does romance blossom in the hilarious conglomeration of music, laughs and nonsense.

"This Day and Age."

All of Hollywood's younger actors have been assembled to portray faithfully the fire and enthusiasm of youth in Cecil B. DeMille's spectacle of modern times titled "This Day and Age," which opened on Tuesday at the Alhambra. Story of the battle of the indignant youth of an average community against a city's "underworld" influences after all efforts of the city's adults have failed, "This Day and Age" called for an imposing list of younger players to portray realistically the fiery roles. Accordingly, in the cast are Richard Cromwell, Eddie Nugent, Ben Alexander, Mickey Daniels and Miss Judith Allen, DeMille's latest discovery. Portraying the adult roles are Charles Bickford, and Bradley Page as the assistants, Harry Green and George Barbier. Also in the cast are the sons of famous screen stars of to-day and yesterday, including Wallace Reid, Jr.; Eric von Stroheim, Jr.; Carlyle Blackwell, Jr.; Bryant Washburn, Jr.; Neil Hart, Jr.; Frank Tinney, Jr.; and Fred Kohler, Jr.

"So This Is Africa."

Deep into the animal infested jungles of the darkest of the dark belts in Africa, tread the famous comedians, Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey, in their latest film comedy, "So This Is Africa," produced by Columbia Studios, and coming on Saturday to the Alhambra. Not merely one, but one hundred iron-muscled Tarzans, garbed in the characteristic lion skins, give these comedians pause for thought and many ridiculous incidents as the story of "So This Is Africa!" unfolds. And not one, but one hundred beautiful, stalwart and blonde Amazon women give evidence of the power of their breed and their deep and strong-flowing passionate instincts much to the embarrassment and suffering of the intrepid explorers, Wheeler and Woolsey, when they brave the terrors of the undiscovered interior of the darkest of continents.

"Night Flight."

The prize for the most supremely "different" characterization as yet registered in talking pictures goes to Clark Gable, as Fabian in "Night Flight," the stirring aeroplane story which M-G-M will offer on Sunday at Queen's Theatre. It is David O. Selznick's second production for M-G-M. Clarence Brown is the director. Besides Gable, a multi-star cast includes John Barrymore, Helen Hayes, Lionel Barrymore, Robert Montgomery and Myrna Loy.

You Cannot Avoid Crowds
But You Can Avoid Colds!

In theatres, cinemas, dance halls and at sporting events, as well as in trams, buses and trains, we are continually exposed to the risk of catching coughs, colds, and throat affections.

Respiroids, the new inhalant lozenges, provide an effective barrier against coughs and colds, and minimise the risk of infection. They are pleasant to take, and are designed that their curative elements are conveyed immediately to the nasal passages, throat and lungs, where the risk of infection is greatest. Carry them with you; they are convenient for the pocket, and be prepared for their immediate use when you encounter a crowd. PROPAGANDA FOR PEACE

Propaganda, which is only another word for advertisement, undoubtedly pays. There is not a dictator breathing but knows it was propaganda that opened his way to triumph and that is necessary if he is to retain his position. A realisation of this basic truth is animating members of the Canadian League of Nations Society, who are determined to put the same push and go into advertising peace that others expend on much less worthy causes. Seeing that nothing can possibly be of greater moment to the people of the world than the preservation of peace, these members are intent on keeping the subject to the fore in a way which is in line with its importance. Hence the plan to wake up the whole Canadian nation to the issue. Nothing is to be left untouched in the great campaign now being organised. The wireless, the Press, the Churches, Universities, schools, clubs, and women's organisations are to be stirred to activity in a national peace campaign. Sceptics as a matter of course will say that the effort will be in vain, will meet the fate of all other enthusiasms. But how can they tell what have been the fruits of past efforts? They can see that the world is far from being weaned from war; but they cannot tell what might have happened if there had been no effort made to foil the machinations of malice and fanaticism. Public men are constantly warning us that the danger to world peace is critical, as critical as at any time since the war. The disarmament talks are now being resumed and these will supply a barometer of official feeling. But behind all conferences, for weal or woe, is public opinion, and nothing is more reasonable than to do as the Canadians are doing—see that the cause of peace does not suffer for lack of propaganda.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin has emphatically assured the Continent that Great Britain takes the treaty seriously, and will not shirk its duty. No pronouncement of recent times has been better received in France, where the old cry for security is still insistent. So far, then, the virtual renewal of the Locarno Treaty, for which Sir Austen Chamberlain, Herr Stresemann and M. Briand were chiefly responsible, has served to allay somewhat the inquietude which has recently manifested itself. But the question has been raised by Sir Charles Mallet of the possibility of a "preventive war." Such a war is highly improbable, but it is well to consider even the most improbable eventualities. Undoubtedly there has been talk in Europe of the rather foolish method of preventing war by making war. The argument runs that if there should be a conviction of an impending attack, it would be sound policy to forestall such an attack, and to use a popular phrase, to get one's blow in first.

DANGEROUS ISSUE

Let it be repeated that no French statesman at present contemplates such a measure. It would be a confession of failure. It would be a policy of despair. It would be to imitate Gribouille who, in George Sand's story, plunged into the water to escape from the rain. There is no reason to suppose that European statesmanship will thus admit bankruptcy. Nevertheless, in the hypothetical contingency of a preventive war at some future date, what would be the position of Great Britain and other signatories of the Locarno Treaty? The pertinent question which Sir Charles Mallet puts is whether, in the event of alarm subsequently reaching greater heights, and provoking rash action on the part of a country which desires peace and yet foolishly resorts to war, Great Britain would be bound to place its forces on the opposing side, with which it might have no sympathy whatever. The moral is that statesmanship must not wait while such a contingency is feasible. Nothing must be spared that will render commitments a dead letter in the sense that they are not needed.

PUTTING PUNCH INTO POLITICS

By "SENTINEL"

ACCORDING to some authorities the English people are losing their sense of humour. We are such a serious-minded generation that posterity may write us down as sordid-comic. So far as talk is concerned, whether at the dinner-table or from a public platform, there seems to be some truth in this contention. Though more licence is permitted in polite conversation than was customary in Victorian days, there has been no corresponding gain of laughter, the best sauce of all. And politics having dimly declined into economics, speeches in Parliament or "on the air" have reached an unprecedented pitch of dulness.

He never stole a story, but was willing to buy one. He heard an amusing anecdote about Wordsworth, who was praised effusively to his face by a disciple from Scotland and subsequently admitted that he was the most intelligent and well-informed Scot he had ever met. Sydney Smith, finding it had not been told to anybody else, paid five shillings for the exclusive right to its use for a week. He was not opposed to an occasional pennyporth of social deception. Hearing his friend, Mrs. Austin, explain that she was in no relation to Jane Austen, he told her she was quite wrong, adding, "I myself always let it be inferred that I am the son of Adam Smith."

Of a friend, he said: "He has no command over his understanding; it is always getting between his legs and tripping him up." It would be easy to name politicians and publicists of to-day who fulfil these definitions. He defined marriage as follows: "It resembles a pair of shears, so joined that they cannot be separated, often moving in opposite directions, yet always punishing anybody who comes between them." The difficulty of convincing a prejudiced man was thus described: "You might as well try to poultice the humps off a camel's back."

He was also, like Lewis Carroll and Edward Lear, master of the nonsensical common sense which expresses itself in a riot of absurd similitudes. Meeting a friend in the street, Sydney Smith asked where he was going. "To Piccadilly," was the reply. "Then I hope you will pick a good one," said Smith. He added to the effect of his droll stories by acting them. "What a hideous, odd-looking man Sydney Smith is!" exclaimed Mrs. Brookfield, "with a mouth like an oyster and three double chins." His large and fluent physique made his fun Falstaffian. The political humorist should always be a fat man.

Public speaking was never as uninspiring as it is to-day in this country. Strange that it should be so in an epoch when oratory has lifted out of obscurity so many European dictators! Moreover, the amplifier and wireless have so enormously extended the scope of an effective speech that every embryo statesman should spare no pains to acquire the art of clear and forcible self-expression. Only among the young revolutionary Socialists is any serious and systematic effort made to secure the control of the crowd. They get their training at street-corners, which is as much more effectual than attendance at a debating society as actual fighting in the ring is superior to gymnasium work. It is where cross-roads meet under an arc-lamp that the next General Election will be lost or won.

"Oh, hello, dear—we were just talking about you."

The Very Idea!

CHINESE NEW OH YEAH!

By Eddie Kelly Dragon Expert.

WE are going to be quite frank with our readers.

We did not want to celebrate the Chinese New Year.

As a matter of fact, we had settled ourselves down on Tuesday night in the lounge of the Gloucester, holding a tumbler of whisky in one hand and a copy of the Annual Report On the Social and Economic Progress of the People of the Colony of Hongkong During the Year 1933 in the other, for a quiet evening.

But someone kept on filling up our tumbler, and somebody else kept on emptying it as fast as it was filled. It was always getting empty. We didn't blame anyone exactly, but all the same we considered it a mean trick.

Then it struck us how awful it was that the people in Hongkong didn't know how they lived, because outside newspaper reporters, nobody ever reads the Annual Report On the Social and Economic Progress of the People of the Colony of Hongkong for the Year 1933. Then we offered to read our copy out aloud to all the other people who were in the Lounge, so that everybody would know that a small amount of lithographic work has been done for the Government—Marine Surveyor, and that telephone services are not availed of to any great extent by the Chinese in the New Territories.

But although it was Chinese New Year, nobody seemed to want to know about these important things. Just the same, we read some statistics, showing the average barometric pressure at Mean Sea Level in the Colony during 1933, the relative and absolute humidities and the percentage of cloudiness and sun-shine. And when we stopped nobody was filling up our tumbler any more.

But we had a bunch of spring onions in our hand, and began to eat them with a sad-faced man who sat on the Star Ferry beside us, talking to a raw-fowl.

We said: "Who stopped filling up our tumbler?"

He said: "Who's tumbled?"

We said: "Would you like to hear about the number of persons admitted into Maternity wards in Hongkong during 1933?"

He said: "Who's Maternishy Ward?"

We said: "You're drunk!"

He said: "Who's drunk?"

So we went away and bought a fruit stand, because we had to have something to put the raw fowl in. And then we couldn't find the fowl, so we had to go to the market to buy another to put in the fruit dish. And then we couldn't find the fruit dish.

It must have been shortly after this when we found ourselves sitting on the kerb next to a man with a green shirt, who had a bottle of rum.

We said: "Do you know what time this ferry arrives at Kowloon?"

He said: "It's the third door on the left."

Then we began to read to him how much it cost the people of Hongkong to collect and remove the refuse from the streets. He wept.

We said: "What are you weeping for?"

He said: "I was just thinking how it broke her heart to refuse me."

We said: "All right. We'll read something else." So we read about the ratio of expenditure on Medical and Sanitary Services to the total Revenue, and he wept again.

We said: "What's wrong with you now?"

He said: "I was just thinking that my doctor told me that if I drank too much I would kill myself. Would you like a Monster?" So he gave us the Loch Ness monster, and we promised to treat it kindly, and we got up and began walking up the Peak with a man we couldn't see, it was so foggy. But he told us he was a talpan. After a while we lost him, so we continued reciting the Report on the Hongkong and Kowloon Magistracies to ourself.

Then we came to a house and knocked on the door. We had almost finished reading the statistical returns of Emigrants Passed and Rejected during the Year 1933 before someone came and answered our knocking.

The man struck a match and peered into our face. He said: "You? I'll be...."

"Don't!" we said. "Not after we came all this way to tell you all about the Social and Economic Progress of the People of the Colony of Hongkong during the year 1933."

We began to weep. "This is your gratitude," we said. "No wonder a total of eighty-five motor-drivers licences were suspended in 1933 as against 47 in the year 1931. If you gave us a minute we could show it to you in this Annual Report of the Soc... ."

AUSTRIAN REVOLT: THE SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

Precipitated By Raid for Arms at Linz

OFFICIAL REPORT TO BRITAIN

READ IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

FIGHTING IN STATE PARK

London, Feb. 14. Events in Austria are being closely followed in Britain and this afternoon in the Commons, the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, read reports on the situation from the British Minister in Vienna, Sir Walford Selby. The latter has been informed by the Austrian Political Director for Foreign Affairs that the sequence of principal events was as follows:

Socialist headquarters at Linz were visited on Monday morning by police in search of arms. There was armed resistance by members of the Socialist Schutzbund and one policeman was shot.

Troops then intervened and martial law was declared at Linz. The Socialist party then declared a general strike in Vienna and this was answered by the Government with the declaration of martial law.

The Town Hall was occupied in the evening by regular troops and the Mayor and principal officials were confined to their quarters.

STREET FIGHTING.

Sir Walford Selby also reported that the Municipal Council had been dissolved and the Minister of Social Welfare appointed Federal Commissioner for Vienna.

Intermittent street fighting occurred with some loss of life, the extent of which cannot yet be estimated.

The streets were in darkness last night but otherwise the essential services had not been interfered with. Martial law has been proclaimed in Carinthia and Styria and disturbances appeared to have taken place in the latter province.

The rest of Austria was believed to be quiet.

PARK ENCOUNTER.

Press telegrams from Vienna state that heavy fighting occurred, particularly at the Karlmarzhof, which the Socialists defended stubbornly against soldiers and police, we eventually brought artillery into use; and in the State Park at Floretdorf, a few miles from Vienna where the Socialists entrenched themselves behind trees and the park seats.

Government forces claim to have the situation in hand and expect soon to overcome the resistance at the points where it is still encountered. Railway services throughout Austria have remained practically normal.—British Wireless.

RATIONALISING INDUSTRY

Iron and Steel Firms to Take Action

London, Feb. 15. Correspondence has been released for publication between Sir George May, chairman of the Import Duties Advisory Board, and Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

They agreed that the time has come for the reorganisation of the iron and steel industry on the lines of the recommendations made in April, 1933.

The additional duties on iron and steel products are due to expire on October 25 next.

The scheme will be discussed by the National Federation of Iron and Steel Manufacturers on February 22.—Reuter.

CIVIL WORKS SCHEMES STOPPED

All Projects Not on Federal Property

Washington, Feb. 14. The Civil Works Administration has ordered all Federal civil works projects which are not being operated on Federal property to be discontinued at midnight on February 15.

Between 100,000 and 200,000 workers are affected.—Reuter.

Socialist insurgents shall cease at 5 p.m. otherwise "sharper measures will be adopted."

It is difficult to see what "sharper methods" can be employed without endangering hundreds of non-participants in the fighting.

The Government has been ruthless.

MANY DEAD

Huge apartment houses—Vienna's famous model working-class dwellings—have been raked with artillery and machine-gun fire. Over two hundred Socialists have been killed. The number of wounded is probably ten times the figure, though it cannot yet be computed.

The workers' revolt is now believed to be on the verge of collapse following the surrender after merciless fire of the Socialist strongholds in the huge municipal apartment houses in the suburb of Ottakring and also the magnificent "labourers' dwelling" known as the Karlmarzhof.

These buildings were subjected to an intensive bombardment by troops, the Heimwehr and the police, who used howitzers and machine-guns raking them from end to end.

The central business district of Vienna is now practically normal, but machine-gun and rifle fighting is continuing elsewhere.

LINZ BATTLE.

The Socialist entrenchments at Linz were carried by Storm troops this morning, after heavy losses had been inflicted on the attackers. The Socialists fled into the countryside and the troops are in hot pursuit.

It is unofficially estimated that the Socialists left a hundred dead behind them at Linz.

Another hundred were killed at Steyr and from fifty to a hundred at Bruck and Kapfenburg combined. These are unofficial estimates. The number of wounded cannot be calculated.—United Press.

THE DEATH-ROLL IN VIENNA

Threat to Blow Up Gasworks

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, February 11, 1934 a.m.)

Vienna, Feb. 14, 12.30 a.m.

It is officially admitted that twelve policemen and 122 civilians have been killed in Vienna.

But it is also admitted that these figures only include those who have died in hospital as the result of wounds.

The other figures, of the troops slain, and of police and Socialists "killed in action" are not available, and will not become known until the Government troops have finally forced an entry into all the Socialist apartment-house strongholds, which have been bombarded all day and must contain scores of dead and wounded.

REPLY TO ULTIMATUM.

Earlier on, it seemed that the Government was dominating the situation but a new peril has arisen and the situation must be regarded to-night as more serious than when the day began.

Vienna's largest gasworks at Leopoldau, in response to the Government's ultimatum, have replied that if they are fired upon they will "blow the whole of Vienna to eternity."

Another serious problem is occasioned by the prospects of a bread shortage.

TROOPS FATIGUED.

After two days of fighting, the soldiers are very fatigued and their rations are depleted.

Prince von Starhemberg personally directed a storm attack by the Heimwehr at Steyr, which led to the ousting of the Socialists from their defence lines of the city.

A highly critical situation threatens to develop in Vienna. The military, police and civilian volunteers are almost exhausted, and the Socialist Schutzbund have assumed the offensive in numerous areas in the city, opening fire on patrols and endangering the citizens in districts which have not hitherto seen any fighting.

A rumour went the rounds during the morning that the Fifth Regiment had defected and gone over to the Socialists.

At the present time, fighting is proceeding in at least twenty districts in Vienna.—United Press.

GARDEN CITY FIGHT.

Vienna, Feb. 14, 1.20 p.m. The city now is comparatively quiet, the "war" having been broken off for the night. Occasionally an isolated shot can be heard, suggesting that the rebels are keeping a close watch to prevent a surprise attack.

Before nightfall, Government troops thoroughly "cleaned-up" the Floridsdorf Garden City, despite strong Socialist defences. Twenty-seven of the Government troops were killed and over a hundred wounded in the final assault.

The Government appears to have the situation well in hand, but there is still a good deal of fighting to be done and it may take two or three days to deal with isolated centres and sympathetic action in the provinces.—Reuter.

MAJOR FEY'S GRIM THREAT.

Dozens, Perhaps Scores, of Hangings

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, February 11, 1934 a.m.)

Vienna, Feb. 14, 6 a.m.

Machine-guns and artillery have been quiet since midnight, although sporadic fighting continues in the city and the provinces.

It is revealed that aeroplanes directed the gunfire on the Socialist apartment-house strongholds yesterday.

The Socialists taken prisoner, eight are scheduled to be court-martialled in Vienna, twenty-four at Graz and seventy at Steyr.

Major Fey, the Vice-Chancellor, in a radio broadcast last night announced that dozens, possibly scores, of hangings were probable throughout Austria in the next few days.

It is reported that eleven gendarmes were killed at Steyr when a battalion stormed the Socialist stronghold.—United Press.

GENERAL STRIKE COLLAPSES

Socialist Arsenal Captured

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, February 11, 1934 a.m.)

Vienna, Feb. 14, 11.20 a.m.

It is officially announced that the general strike has completely collapsed everywhere. Work has been resumed, including the electricity works and factories.

Tramcars are again running and the city is resuming a normal appearance.

Many of the barricades have been removed.

The night was quiet in Vienna, except when the Heimwehr attacked and captured the Socialist stronghold in the Quellenstrasse, seizing great quantities of firearms and ammunition.

NORTH STATION SURRENDER.

Troops also seized the Socialist headquarters in the Floridsdorf, and also the North Station, which Socialists had occupied, after heavy artillery fire. After a concentrated shelling for some hours, white flag was hoisted, the occupants surrendering.

Troops and the Heimwehr forces are now reported to be advancing on the Schlingerhof.

Heavy guards of police and Heimwehr surround the Criminal Court where ten youthful ring-leaders of the revolt are being tried by summary courts, which are functioning throughout the country.

The Courts at Graz are trying forty-seven and those at Steyr fifteen.

NIGHT FIGHTING AT LINZ.

Despite official claims of victory at Linz, fighting continued all through the night. It is estimated that a hundred Socialists and thirty Government troops were killed.

The Socialists are now mustering on the south-west outskirts of the city.

Innsbruck was quiet except that a few smoke-bombs were discharged. The Nazis are studiously abstaining from the fighting.

The backbone of the Schutzbund resistance is apparently broken in numerous areas in the city, opening fire on patrols and endangering the citizens in districts which have not hitherto seen any fighting.

A rumour went the rounds during the morning that the Fifth Regiment had defected and gone over to the Socialists.

WHITEHALL ANXIOUS

DOLFFUSS'S BID FOR POWER

GERMANY SEIZES ON SITUATION

(Our Own Correspondent).

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, February 14, 11.17 p.m.)

London, Feb. 14. The civil strife in Austria is another grave addition to European anxieties which is providing considerable activity in Whitehall.

The dissolution of the Socialist Party has doubtless been ordered in accord with the wishes of Dr. Dollfuss and Major Fey, who calculate that the crushing of the Socialists will strengthen the hands of the Government against the Nazis.

The Fascists under Prince von Starhemberg are looking to Italy for inspiration.

Recent events indicate that Dr. Dollfuss has thrown in his hand as a Constitutionalist and is now making a bid for power on Fascist lines.

THE DANGER.

Even if he gets rid of the opposition from the Left, however, the Little Chancellor will still be exposed to the extreme unfriendliness of the Nazi regime in Germany.

The danger at present is that Germany may be tempted to interfere in Austria's affairs.

The events of the last two days have been seized upon by the German press as a proof of the futility of the Dollfuss regime. The newspapers exalt the part of passive spectators played by the Nazis in Austria, who have thus far pointed out, allayed the accusations against them of terrorism.

GERMAN VIEWS.

The Volkscher Zeitung declares that the conflicts were necessary in consequence of the catastrophic incompetence of the Viennese Government, which at heart is Democratic and falsely interprets Fascism as the possibility of using force to trample on the real feeling of the people. It is an ironic fact that Dr. Dollfuss should be the one to plunge his country into bloody warfare.—Our Own Correspondent.

This has been officially denied.—Reuter.

GAS WORKS REBELS SURRENDER

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, February 14, 12.14 a.m.)

Vienna, Feb. 14, 3 p.m. The Government claims that the Socialist resistance has been completely overcome that that the Schutzbund has been routed and dissolved.

The Government declares that the last Socialist stronghold in Vienna has either been occupied already or is on the verge of occupation by loyal forces.

The insurgents at the Leopoldau Gas Works failed to carry out their dire threat. They surrendered after short but sharp fighting.

DOLFFUSS INTERVIEWED.

Dr. Dollfuss, in an exclusive interview granted to the United Press, said: "Order has been re-established through the whole of Austria, except for a few minor and strictly localised attempts. The outbreak will soon be past history. The Government which entered the fight against its own will has rapidly succeeded in overcoming the Socialists' criminal attempt. Our administration has continued to function everywhere with iron discipline."

PRINCE CONFIDENT.

Prince von Starhemberg, the head of the Heimwehr, who is at present at Steyr, told the United Press over the telephone: "Steyr is completely in our hands. The fighting has ceased."—United Press.

Two changes have been made in the Football Association team to oppose the Combined Chinese in a charity match on Sunday on behalf of the funds of the Cheo Club.

Blake of Kowloon cannot play, and his place on the left wing will be taken by Seal of the Royal Artillery. McGuiness will be a non-starter, and Ward of St. Joseph's will deputise. Consequently, the F. A. team will be:

The Chinese team has not yet been announced. The match, which is being played on the Hongkong Football Club ground, will start at 4 o'clock.

CHAMPIONSHIP MATCH.

The match which will decide the championship of the second division has been arranged for Saturday, when at Sookpung, the Borderers entertain South China.

At the moment, South China head the table, one point ahead of the Borderers. Both have two games outstanding before completing the season's programme, but the outcome of this encounter is certain to decide the destination of the championship.

The Borderers must win if they are to finish on top. The probable teams will be:

Borderers—Williams; Herbert Jenkins, Wheelan, Underwood, Williams, Scarlo, Marshall, Morris, Pallister and Johns.

HONGKONG CHANCES NOW MUCH BRIGHTER CAN AFFORD TO DRAW ONE MATCH

MACAO DRAW WITH HONGKONG SPLENDID INTERPORT HOCKEY MATCH

VISITORS EQUALISE IN THE LAST MINUTES OF THE GAME

(By R.H.B.)

NEARLY ONE THOUSAND SPECTATORS, a record attendance for any local representative hockey match, were thrilled at King's Park yesterday afternoon, when Hongkong and Macao met on the Club ground to do battle in the first official Interport hockey match. Splendidly contested throughout, the game ended in a draw each Colony scoring once. Both goals were netted within the last quarter-of-an-hour of the match.

Hongkong, should have won. There was a period in the early stages of the second half, when the forwards simply bombarded the Portuguese citadel, and they should have rounded off at least five goals but their marksmanship was poor.

A. J. M. Rodrigues, of the University, at right-back for Hongkong, played the game of his life. He was a rock in the Colony defence, nipping in in the nick of time. In his first trial Rodrigues made concrete his selection and on yesterday's display fully justified his inclusion.

Hollingsworth brought off a brilliant clearance to save what appeared to be a certain goal from a shot by Romilho. Later on Macao nearly scored from a melee.

ARCHER FAILS.

Both attacks were below full strength, Hongkong sorely lacking the services of Lal Singh (Punjab) on the left wing, while Manhao was a notable absentee from the visitors' forward line. Laertes da Costa, who filled the vacancy, played a dashing game and scored the goal that gave Macao's claim to share the honours.

Both goalkeepers, Hollingsworth (Hongkong) and Almada, for Macao, were on good form, but Hollingsworth, especially in the second half, was prone to become erratic with his kicking. On more occasions than one, both Rodriguez and Rodger left it to Hollingsworth to clear, and the Colony custodian miskicked creating danger in the dead.

W. A. Reed, the Hongkong right-half, played a safe game reviving the defence of many anxious moments when Sinclair at centre-half, was completely beaten. Sinclair was slow, and his clearing lacked hard hitting. Edgar Reed, at left-half, like his brother, played well. Against Nolasco, a right wing of no mean speed, he had a lot of work to do.

Of the Colony forwards, Archer (Lincolns) and A. J. M. Rodriguez (University) and J. Rodger (H.K. Club), Lieut. E. N. Sinclair (H.M.S. Medway) and E. V. Reed (H.K. Club); Lieut. W. S. Donald (H.M.S. Medway), Lieut. J. H. Eden (H.M.S. Medway), Gurbachan Singh (Radio S.C.), Kalgat Singh (Radio S.C.) and S.C. Archer (H.K. Club).

AT THE FESTIVE BOARD

Hockey Interporters Celebrate

An appeal for all players, spectators and critics to do all they can to help umpires and not criticise unfairly, was made by Mr. A. A. Dandy, the Club skipper and Vice-President of the Hongkong Hockey Association speaking at the Interport Hockey dinner at the Cafe de Luxe (China Emporium) last night.

Mr. Dandy dealt with the work accomplished by the Association since its formation six months ago, and an Umpires Hockey Board was functioning and to date about forty candidates had been examined.

"I am giving away no secret when I say we hope to have in the very near future a visit of the Singapore Hockey Club," said the speaker.

The Association had inaugurated an International Tournament which will be commenced next month. The success of the Association had attained was in no small measure due to the untiring efforts and energies of Mr. F. E. Kemp, the Hon. Secretary. He took the opportunity of thanking Mr. Kemp and the members of the sub-committee who worked so hard to make the success it was.

Other speakers were the Portuguese Consul General (Mr. R. (Continued on Page 4))

Shanghai, Feb. 14.
THE first match of the triangular football Interport tournament was played here this afternoon, when Shanghai (holders of the trophy) and Tientsin, challengers, drew after a brilliant match, each side scoring three goals.

ALL of the goals were scored in the second half, when some astounding football was seen, exciting the big crowd to a display of wild enthusiasm as Shanghai drew level for the last time only a few minutes from the close.

DEFENCES prevailed in the first half, with the exchanges running on fairly even lines. Both goals experienced narrow escapes, but the interval arrived with a blank sheet.

AFTER the restart, Tientsin dominated the play, and playing much the better football, gained the ascendancy.

EVERYTHING pointed to a spectacular win by the visitors, especially when they drew out to a 3-2 lead far into the second half.

BUT Shanghai fought back with grim determination, and in a final effort, equalised with only a few minutes left.—Reuter.

The result materially increases Hongkong's prospects of winning back the cup. They have now only to obtain a win and a draw from their two matches to accomplish the feat.

It is now impossible to state definitely whether Hongkong will meet Shanghai or Tientsin to-day, although it will very likely be Tientsin, with the more important Shanghai encounter left until Saturday.

Indications are that Tientsin are somewhat better than Shanghai, and that if Hongkong, assuming they play them to-day, succeed in defeating the men from Chili, they should manage to hold their own quite comfortably against Shanghai.

Yesterday was the second time Tientsin and Shanghai had met in a triangular tournament. The first occasion was in 1930, when Shanghai defeated their rivals, and also trounced Hongkong by 5 goals to 2, to win the competition with ease.

THE first triangular tournament to include Tientsin was in 1930. Again Shanghai were successful. Since then Hongkong and Shanghai have vied for the trophy. In 1931 Hongkong were beaten here by the odd goal in seven. They made the trip to Shanghai in November 1932, and contrary to all expectations won brilliantly by the same score.

THIS was the first occasion on which Hongkong won on foreign soil.

LONDON FRAUDS

SALVAGE CORPS CHIEF
SENT TO PRISON

London, Feb. 13.—The sensational trial at Old Bailey of Captain Bryamour Miles, Chief Officer of the London Salvage Corps, who was arrested following sensational disclosures by Leopold Harris, ended to-day, when Miles was found guilty on three charges of corruption.

Miles was also found guilty on a charge of conspiring with Harris and others to prevent the course of justice, but was found not guilty on other charges. He was sentenced to four years penal servitude.

Mr. Justice Hawk, in passing sentence, said that the maximum sentence he could give Miles on any one count was two years' imprisonment. He considered that the case was one of the worst of its kind he had ever known, and he therefore felt bound to put into operation the legal provisions permitting a sentence of penal servitude.

The jury included three women. Nine charges were preferred against Captain Miles who pleaded "not guilty". The Attorney-General, Sir Thomas Inskip, prosecuted.—Reuters.

DARING ROBBERY

CONSTABLE LOSES $2,200
IN BILLS

A robbery, which for its daring is almost unparalleled here, was committed about 8:30 a.m. on Tuesday inside the Royal Naval Dockyard, when an Indian police constable, Sher Mohamed, attached to the Dockyard Police, was relieved of 22 hundred dollar bills which, it is said, he was carrying in his hand.

The constable was attacked by three men, believed to be employees of the Dockyard, in one of the sheds. He was knocked to the ground with a hammer, and the money, which he said in a Police report he was carrying in his hands, was taken.

The three men then made their escape by jumping over the wall surrounding the Dockyard, but one of them said to be Lee Choi, injured his ankle. In spite of this, however, he escaped, only to be arrested in the afternoon in Causeway Bay. He was sent to the Government Civil Hospital, and detained.

The money was not recovered, and neither have the other two men been arrested as yet. The money was the constable's personal property, and represented his savings for several years.

With a view to expediting the completion of the crematorium, a meeting of the Hindu Association was held on January 28 at which a sub-committee consisting of Dr. P. D. R. Naidu and Messrs. L. Gopaldas, H. Jeramdas and D. Jewatran was appointed to take

ANTUNG DISASTER SEQUEL: MALAYAN PLANter's HEROISM

U.S. Air Mail Contract Scandal Development

REPLY TO COL. LINDBERGH
INJUNCTION AGAINST THE P.M.G.

WHITE HOUSE PLANS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1934. Received, February 11, 9:55 a.m.)

Washington, Feb. 14.

It is learned that President Roosevelt intends to return the air-mail carrying services to private air concerns as soon as he obtains legislation from Congress revising the entire organization of air mail services in the United States.

The main feature of the official proposals is to eliminate any provision for government subsidies from future mail contracts.—United Press.

Washington, Feb. 13.
The air mail routes to be flown by the Army Air Force will be temporarily reduced from 27,000 miles to 11,000 miles during the period in which the service is carried on by Army machines.

It is understood that it is President Roosevelt's intention to eliminate direct commercial subsidies, payment to be made instead on the amount of mails transported.

Brigadier General Westover will be placed in charge of the new service, which is probably beginning on the 10th inst., and which will be operated at first with a hundred machines.—Reuter.

INJUNCTION GRANTED.

New York, Feb. 14.
The Trans-Continental Western Air Line, of which Colonel Charles Lindbergh is technical adviser, has obtained an order from the Federal Judge requiring the Postmaster General to show cause why he should not be restrained from acting on the decree cancelling the air mail contracts.—Reuter.

MR. FAIRLEY REPLIES.

Washington, Feb. 14.
Mr. Farley, the Postmaster-General, as replied to Col. Lindbergh's protest stating that Colonel Lindbergh would have realized that no injustice had been done to any of the air mail carrying companies if he had been in possession of all the facts.—Reuter.

P.M.G. SARCASTIC.

(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1934. Received, February 15, 8:58 a.m.)

Washington, Feb. 14.

A strongly-worded letter to Col. Lindbergh has been sent by Mr. Farley, who sarcastically stated that he would not reveal the contents "until Col. Lindbergh has had ample time to make it public."

The White House foreshadows complete reorganization of ship mail subsidies. The President defined ocean mail contracts as really subsidies, and said that some subsidies had been given where they should not have been as far as mail-carrying was concerned.

Officials deny reports that the President is preparing to restore many of the cancelled air mail contracts.—United Press.

DISARMAMENT QUESTION

BUREAU TO MEET IN APRIL

London, Feb. 13.
The officers of the Bureau of the Disarmament Conference who met to-day in London decided that in order to allow time for further efforts, and for any other steps which might arise out of them, the best course would be for the Bureau to meet on 10th April, with an understanding that if the situation changes considerably, or if requested by one or more of the powers concerned in negotiations, the President may summon the Bureau at an earlier date.

Authority was given to the President to take action in either of these eventualities.—British Wires.

marked business ability, sterling character and kindly disposition. He was, in fact, one of the best types of business men of the old school, and of so generous a nature that he was constantly helping others. Many people who received of his bounty will greatly miss him; indeed, he will be mourned throughout the Colony. He was a man of many parts, and was a voracious reader, at one time possessing one of the finest libraries in the Colony. A Scotman, he was for many years very actively identified with the Hongkong St. Andrew's Society, of which he was Chieftain in 1907-08.

The late Mr. Shewan was married in 1906, and he is survived by his widow, as well as by Mr. I. W. Shewan, a nephew.

ANNIVERSARY DAY.

It was exactly fifty-three years ago to the day yesterday that Mr. R. G. Shewan, who was head of the firm of Messrs. Shewan, Tomes and Co., first arrived in Hongkong.

The late Mr. Shewan came to Hongkong when a young man to join the firm of Russell and Co., one of the biggest commercial concerns in the Colony, having been appointed by its London agents, the well-known banking firm of Barings Bros. and Co. In 1891, the firm was reorganized and was taken over by Mr. Shewan under the name of Shewan and Co. In 1895, Mr. Shewan was joined in partnership by Mr. C. A. Tomes, and the firm then adopted its present name of Shewan, Tomes and Co.

The Green Island Cement Co., the Hongkong Rope Mfg. Company, the China Light and Power Co., the China Provident Loan and Mortgage Co., Sandakan Light and Power Co., China Underwriters, Ltd., have all at one time been, and three still are, under the management of the firm of which Mr. Shewan was the head, so that it can in truth be stated that his was very largely the guiding hand in many of the principal industrial and commercial enterprises in the Colony.

GIFTED SPEAKER.

For many years he took a prominent part in the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce—and for four years—from 1902 until 1906—he represented the interests of that body on the Legislative Council, being a fearless and gifted speaker.

He again served on the Council in 1917 and 1919 on the nomination of His Excellency the Governor.

During his first term of office, over thirty years ago, he formed one of a Select Committee appointed to enquire into and report upon the question of the circulation of subsidiary coins in the Colony. At one time he was a Director of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation and had served on the directors of many local companies, including the South China Morning Post, Ltd.

BRITISH TEA EXPORTS

HEAVY CUT IN U.S. FIGURE

London, Feb. 14.
Imports of British-grown tea into the United States fell by 7,500,000 lbs. in 1933, while Dutch-grown tea increased by 7,500,000 lbs. according to the review of the tea trade for last year, issued by the Brooke Bond Company.

The fall in British tea is due to the fact that owing to Empire preference, Java tea can be bought at much more attractive prices by United States importers. The production of British-grown tea for the year fell by 108,750,000 lbs.—Reuter.

U.S. LOAN SOON TAKEN UP

Washington, Feb. 13.
The lists for the $800,000,000 loan for now financing have been closed, the issue having been oversubscribed.—Reuter.

Later.

The Treasury announces that the loan was four times over-subscribed.—Reuter.

FRENCH REPLY TO GERMANY

Disarmament Proposals Rejected

Paris, Feb. 14.
The French Reply to the German Armaments Memorandum was delivered last evening, and is expected to be published in Berlin on Thursday.

It is believed that the Reply courteously but firmly rejects the German proposals.—Reuter.

AUSTRIA'S APPEAL TO LEAGUE

BRITISH OFFICIAL AIDE MEMOIRE

STATEMENT IN COMMONS

London, Feb. 13.

Sir John Simon read in the House of Commons to-day the Aide Memoire handed on 9th February to the Austrian Minister in London the day after receiving from him a copy of the documents on which the Austrian Government propose to base their appeal to the League of Nations. The following is the text of the Aide Memoire:

"His Majesty's Government have decided in principle to bring the matters of which they complain before the League under Article 11, Paragraph 2, of the Covenant. His Majesty's Government have publicly stated that they do not seek to discourage Austria in bringing this appeal.

"The integrity and independence of Austria are an object of British policy, and while His Majesty's Government have no intention whatever of interfering in the internal affairs of another country, they fully recognise the right of Austria to demand that there should be no interference with her internal affairs from any other quarter.

"On entertaining Austria's appeal, the Council would presumably endeavour to ascertain what Germany may have to say as to the facts alleged, before reaching its recommendations. His Majesty's Government therefore think that the proper course is not to pronounce a view on the Austrian material in advance of its consideration by the Council."

Asked if and when the League would discuss Austria's difficulties, Sir John Simon said he believed the situation was that though the Austrian Government had decided in principle to present its appeal to the League, it was left to Dr. Dollfuss to decide at what moment it should be done. As soon as the appeal was presented, there would be a special meeting of the Council.

During his first term of office, over thirty years ago, he formed one of a Select Committee appointed to enquire into and report upon the question of the circulation of subsidiary coins in the Colony. At one time he was a Director of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation and had served on the directors of many local companies, including the South China Morning Post, Ltd.

RUBBER CONTROL OUTLOOK

VIEW OF DUTCH GOVERNMENT

London, Feb. 14.

According to the Amsterdam correspondent of the Financial News, the International Association for Rubber Culture in the Dutch East Indies will meet in Amsterdam on Friday to discuss restriction measures.

It is learned from an authoritative source that the Dutch Government will stipulate that any restriction measures will have to be taken principally by European producers.—Reuter.

STANHOPE MEDAL AWARDED

THE BRAVEST ACT OF 1933

SAVED WIFE OF CAPTAIN

The Stanhope Gold Medal, for the bravest act in 1933, has been awarded to Mr. H. E. B. Jones, a rubber planter from the F.M.S., for the rescue of Mrs. R. H. G. Ashby, wife of the captain of the China Navigation Company's steamer Antung, and a number of Chinese passengers when the ship foundered on March 6th last year off Mofu Point, Hainan Island.

It will be recalled that the Antung went on the rocks during a storm at night, and that altogether some seventy lives were lost, largely as a result of uncontrolled panic by Chinese passengers and desertion of the crew.

The only European passenger aboard the Antung was Mr. Jones, and he, together with a Russian anti-piracy guard, was instrumental in saving the life of Mrs. Ashby, her baby son and several Chinese women and children passengers.

PANIC RUSH

Mrs. Ashby and her little son had managed to get into one of the lifeboats just as it was about to be lowered, when it was overturned as the result of a panic rush by Chinese passengers.

Mr. Jones and the Russian guard immediately jumped into the surf, and by means of ropes which they tied on to Mrs. Ashby and her child, as well as other women and children, they were instrumental in getting them pulled aboard the Antung.

The s.s. Anhui and the s.s. Kamo, as well as H.M.S. Folkestone assisted in rescue work, and eventually nearly 300 of the passengers were brought into Hongkong, no trace being found of about seventy others who were drowned through the overturning of lifeboats.

ENGLAND WINS

India's Bats Make Stubborn Stand.

Madras, Feb. 13.

In the third Test Match between India and England, the visitors won by 202 runs, thus taking the rubber. There were 20,000 people present to-day, in bright weather, but the wicket was crumbling.

Hussain, who batted extremely well, and was one of the overnight partnerships, was bowled by Langridge. He had scored 38 runs and was very bright latterly. His innings lasted 105 minutes and included six fours. 119-3-36.

Amar Singh, who partnered him, did not last much longer. He was caught by Barnett at cover. Langridge bowled, after contributing 48 runs in thirty-six minutes. His innings included eight fours, and was featured by hard hitting. The partnership actually yielded 74 runs in 30 minutes. 120-4-48.

C. K. Naidu was stumped by Elliott, Langridge bowling, after scoring only 20. 125-5-2.

Langridge, at this stage, had taken three wickets for 19 runs.

Merchant went to the wicket and made a stout stand. With Patiala he saw the score mount past the 200 mark. Patiala was caught out by Elliott, off Langridge. Merchant had scored 60. His off driving was brilliant and his cutting sound through an hour's play. He had ten fours and a five.

When the luncheon interval came Merchant had 25 runs up, and Amarnath, who had joined him, had scored three. The score was then 218 for six wickets.

Merchant Caught.

Merchant was caught out by Verity, who was also bowling, soon after lunch. He scored 23.

Nazir Ali joined Amarnath, who was hitting out well, but the bowler was stamping before he had scored a run. Verity bowling.

Naomai, who was injured in the first innings, did not bat, and Amarnath had scored 28 not out at the close of play. India's total was 249.

CHARITY MATCH.

A charity football match has been arranged for next Sunday afternoon between a Combined Chinese team and the team of the Colony.

The Hongkong Football Club ground has been loaned for the occasion, and the kick-off will be at 4 o'clock. Prices of admission to the stands are $2, $1 and 50 cents.

The gate money will be devoted to the funds of the Chinese Club.

The football to be used in the match, kindly donated by the Hongkong Football Club, will be raffled at the finish of the game. Tickets at 10 cents each will be on sale on the ground.

It is hoped that the public will attend in large numbers, thereby benefitting the funds of the above Club.

ANGLO-JAPANESE PARLEY

COTTON TALKS OPEN IN LONDON

London, Feb. 14.
Negotiations between representatives of the United Kingdom and Japanese cotton and rayon industries opened to-day, and two sessions were held.

The British Government is not participating in the negotiations, but Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, who was present at the opening, said the Government were deeply interested in their outcome and hoped the discussions would proceed in a round-table spirit.—British Wireless.

LIGHT ON RUSSIAN "SPY" CASE

NATURE OF CHARGES

Berlin, Jan. 16.
Further details reached Berlin to-day of the arrest in Soviet Russia of foreigners and Russian subjects on suspicion of their implication in industrial espionage, sabotage and arson. It is now stated that the foreigners number nine and that the Russians exceed 100.

It is believed here that the Soviet Government is preparing another sabotage trial designed to be even more spectacular than the recent trial of the Metro Vickers engineers.

The alleged sabotage with which three foreign engineers are to be charged concerns the sinking of two Russian submarines in the Black Sea last summer, and the burning of a naval wharf on the coast of the Black Sea.

Charges of industrial and economic espionage are to be brought against six foreign branch managers of the former German firm of general agents, the Control Company, which is a daughter concern of the well-known Swiss firm of general agents, the Societe Generale des Surveillances de Geneva.

The Vicar of St. Michael's, the Rev. W. R. A. Brown, afterwards agreed to marry the couple, but on this occasion only the bride and bridegroom, with two witnesses, attended.

Soviet Foreign Office has not officially revealed their names and the exact nature of the charges against them.

It is believed in Berlin that the arrested foreigners are to be put forward as scapegoats for the Soviet Government's own incapacity to fulfil its ambitious industrial and economic programme.

FUTURE OF THE DOLLAR

GRADUAL CORRECTION OF UNDERRVALUATION

TIMES COMMENT

The Times commenting on the future course of the American dollar reflects the growing belief that the under-valuation of the dollar may soon be corrected.

The journal points out that while the dollar is falling from its parity with gold currencies, commercial demand is tempted to wait until the readjustment of values has been completed.

It is, therefore, likely that when parity is reached, there may be a temporary rebound, probably leading to a resumption of gold shipments, but the disturbance to Europe in this event will be less violent than when the dollar was first revalued.

American Government expenditures remain the most important factor in business improvement, as these expenditures are likely to grow and a further rise in prices seems inevitable, which event would gradually correct the undervaluation of the dollar.—Reuter.

FRENCH INTEREST IN MANCHUKUO

REPORTS OF BIG FINANCING

"LARGE-SCALE" ASSISTANCE

Paris, Feb. 13.

According to messages from Tokyo, M. Andre d'Olivier, representing the Association Nationale Francaise d'Expansion, has received authority to sign an agreement for large-scale French participation in the economic reconstruction of Manchukuo with a Franco-Japanese Consortium.

Information gathered here is to the effect that M. d'Olivier represents certain French groups—not the Association named above—and has been empowered to sign a provisional contract, subject to approval in Paris.

According to quarters who have knowledge of the situation, it seems probable that the messages from Tokyo indicate rather Japanese anxiety to see French capital in Manchukuo than actual realization of such hopes.

FRENCH CAUTIOUS

French industrialists are definitely interested in the matter, but they are anxious to avoid any precipitate signing of contracts before they are completely satisfied with the prospects. Contract possibilities specially interesting

DEALER IN WARSHIPS DIES AT 84

Mr. Charles Ranlett Flint

New York, Feb. 13. The death had occurred, at the age of 84 years, of Mr. Charles Ranlett Flint, the well-known financier and merchant, who was known as the "Father of Trusts."

In the course of his career, Mr. Flint fitted out a fleet of war vessels for Brazil in 1893, purchased the cruiser Esmeralda from Chile and delivered it to Japan in the Sino-Japanese War of 1895, and sold to the Russian Government in 1904 twenty submarines and torpedo-boats.

He was closely identified with numerous American industries, and was the Chairman of the American Commission for the Encouragement of Democratic Government in Russia.—Reuter.

the French affect heavy industries. It is stated here that Japan is unable to find enough capital for the vast schemes of State-owned railroads, electrification projects, etc., planned in Manchukuo.—Reuter.

STRICT NEUTRALITY.

Paris, Feb. 14. Aprons last night's reference to a French financial move in Manchukuo, authoritative quarters emphasize that any negotiations between French and Japanese industrial groups are entirely private as French relations with Japan and the Soviets necessitate the avoidance of any appearance that France is departing from a policy of strict neutrality.—Reuter.

Value Of Newspaper Advertising

Sir Charles Higham, at a luncheon of the Islington Chamber of Commerce recently emphasized the part which everyone must play in hastening the return to prosperity.

"Any going back to complacency," he remarked, "is a retrograde step. We are both the envy of, and the object lesson to, the world. Well and good, but we must still bestir ourselves.

"The London stores have had record business this month, due to their giving sound goods at reasonable prices, and telling the world they have got them."

"Newspaper advertising is paying as it has not paid for years, because the people are realising that they must not have to save all, but spend a part."

"Every time you stop buying a pair of shoes that you need, you are stopping many workmen helping to make them. Every time you dawdle over your task you are helping somebody to stop theirs."
